-er verbs			Opinions with a noun			Negatives:
The –er verbs in Spanish are a group of verbs that all have the same endings in the present tense.			When we give opinions we need to use the verbs 'gustar' and 'encantar'. Both verbs work in the same way:			In Spanish to turn a verb negative is very easy!
To form the correct ending you follow the two steps below:						You just add an adverb (the negative part) directly before the verb.
1) Remove the –er from the infinitive, to be left with the stem.						The ones you need to know are:
2) Add the correct new ending depending on who is doing the action.
